BOOTS AND SHOES.

I. V. BLOND,—This is the place to visit, if you wish to harness your feet in the most stylish shoes or boots made. They can be found there without limit, and at prices to suit all sorts of purses. There is noting like a nice fitting boot or shoe, and those who are particular in this regard (who that has any taste isn't?) cannot in a day's travel find a better place than Blond's to buy it. Mr. Blond advertises the finest qualities and most popular styles of shoes for ladies and gentlemen. This store has an important part in Christmas preparation.

J. T. STONE.—Here we have all the varieties of superb boots, and shoes, and slippers, at ante-war prices. That's good. It is well to have something that's antewar; for there has been, alse, so much since the war to produce trouble and distress. Mr. Stone also keeps a large assortment of hats and caps, which he filters 'at any price to close out." The same bountifully supplied with lux-and substantials, the rooms are silks, crapes, wreaths, bridal illusion, gloves, handkerchiefs, ties, and all the pharaphernalia of a lady's attire—all may be bought at Myers', 1046 Main street, at the lowest rates. Go and see clean and convenient of access, and rants are attentive and polite.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

LOGAN, LIST & CO.—Elegant drugstore for artistic preparations and skilfully put up recipes. Most people don't like to take medicine at Christmas, notwithstanding that Logan, List & Co. put up doses in a manner irresistible; but, then, they have a large variety of things not at il related to medicine, and which are so elegant and so salutary that Christmas nowalays can't do without them. Such perfumery—such cologne. Why, Fransipanni is an exile in these days, the perfumers have so many new enclantments. Besides these are the porte monaies and the hair-brushes, &c. So that sick or well, jolly or sad, Logan, List & Co.'s is the place togo. It is, tog, the place for beauty to array herself, and throw about her the sweet odors that rival the spieced gales from Araby the blest. Bridge corner.

It is remarkable with what pertinacily certain lines of trade adhere to certain well defined localities, so that in all cities there are particular streets that mark the boundaries of the whole-sale trade distinctly from the retail trade. Outside of those limits we neither look for nor expect to find either the one or the other carried on upon such a scale as to constitute a marked feature in the business of a city. The wholesale trade of a city always confines itself to the proximity of its shipping facilities, whether water or rail, while the retail trade R. J. SMYII.—At the family grocery establishment of R.
